DR. SELTZER GOING TO LOWER MORELAND

BRISTOL BORO SCHOOL HEAD QUITS

Dr. Richard W. Seltzer

Dr. Richard W. Seltzer, superintendent of Bristol Schools, has resigned his position to accept the post of supervising principal of Lower Moreland Schools.

Dr. Seltzer's resignation, which took the Bristol School Board by surprise, will become effective Sept. 13.

The sudden move leaves Bristol without a school superintendent with little more than a month remaining before the September school opening.

Personal Reasons

In his letter of resignation which was sent to all members of the Bristol School Board, Dr. Seltzer stated his reasons for leaving were personal.

He said he found no dissatisfaction with the board, and that its members were generally very cooperative.

Dr. Seltzer was employed by the Bristol board in June of 1963 at a salary of $12,000. When the 1964-65 school budget was constructed it included a $1,000 increase in salary for the educator.

$15,000 Salary

Raymond Baker, vice president of the Lower Moreland School Board, said Dr. Seltzer was selected from 60 applicants for the position at an annual salary of $15,000.

Carmen Gullotto, president of the Bristol board, expressed both surprise and disappointment at the turn of events.

Gullotto said he knew that Dr. Seltzer was ambitious, and while he expected him to remain in Bristol for four years he did expect the educator to move to another position after that.

In his year at Bristol, Dr. Seltzer instigated a number of educational changes. Among these were two new positions in special education at the elementary level for the mentally retarded which will start in September; an additional position for a full time guidance counselor available to elementary grades; an additional math teacher at the high school level; a language lab offering four years of Spanish and French courses, also to begin in September; the new physical science study curriculum which will also be offered in September, with chemistry and biology following next year; the addition of television sets in the high school as well as at the Warren Snyder Elementary School.

Board Hits Middletown School Costs

By JIM RUARK
Courier-Times Staff Writer

The Middletown Township School Board reappraised its building programs last night and protested the estimated cost of $3,828,856 for a new junior high school.

The board is presently engaged in four building projects totaling $6,645,806.

Board president Bert Herman criticized Haag and d'Entremont of Jenkintown, the architects of the proposed junior high school, and suggested that the Neshaminy School District has "picked the architects' brains clean" in search of economical ideas.

Defends Architects

Lawrence Levinson, a board member, defended the architects when he gave a report of the building and maintenance committee. He said the architects and committee met recently with representatives of the American Bridge Division of U.S. Steel Co.

Some board members and school administrators believe the type of construction designed by the steel company is cheaper and takes less time to build than conventional school buildings.

Levinson said that the steel company's estimates on the junior high school would put the

It appears Mayor Wagner's going to have to get home from a European vacation and move to quiet the growing unrest in Manhattan's Negro ghetto before it gets out of hand.

As a matter of fact, with an election season almost here, we suspect Congress will get its job done in a hurry. There's a lot of campaigning in the hustings to be done.

Mr. Goldwater thinks it would be a good idea if he and President Johnson joined in an effort to head off racial tension in the upcoming vote-getting drive.

We have an idea Mr. Johnson agrees and maybe the sooner the gentlemen get together to talk the matter over the better.

EXTREMISTS WHIP UP HATE

MORE HARLEM RIOTS FORECAST

NEW YORK (UPI) — Negri leaders predicted "another night of hell" in riot-ripped Harlem tonight because a grand jury investigating the shooting of a Negro teenager was moving too slowly to satisfy the angry demands of old-line and extremist civil rights groups.

Today marked the emergence of black nationalist groups as contenders for leadership of the powderkeg situation that has erupted in violence, vandalism and looting for the past three nights in Harlem and Monday night in Brooklyn.

There were signs that Mayor Robert F. Wagner would have to deal with personalities other than James Farmer of the nonviolent Congress of Racial Equality (CORE) on his return here from a Spanish vacation this afternoon.

Demands Meeting

James Lawson, president of the militant United African Nationalist Movement, sent a telegram to city hall demanding that Wagner meet with black nationalist representatives no later than 7 p.m. EDT. Farmer followed this up with an announcement that the mayor should see "some of the black nationalist groups as weel as me."

Farmer said that if the New York County grand jury that began an investigation of the shooting o. 15-year-old James Powell this morning didn't question his slayer, Lt. Thomas Gilligan, immediately, "I'm afraid we're in for hell tonight."

But Galligan was not scheduled to be called today because the district attorney called only medical and ballistics experts for testimony.

Influence Waning

Observers said the influence of CORE and other non-violent groups seemed to be waning as the bloody disorders continued, resulting so far in one death, 103 serious injuries to civilians and police, 155 arrests, and 87 damage stores in Harlem and 30 arrests and 30 damaged stores in Brooklyn.

But police officials optimistically reported they felt "the worst is over" and put the entire force back on normal eight-hour tours of duty instead of the 12-hour emergency tours in effect since last Friday.

Farmer said, however, that he felt National Guard troops should be sent into the city today. He said he had asked Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller, vacationing in Wyoming, for troops but had no definite reply.

"If we do not hear from the governor, we will have to consider calling on the federal government for troops," Farmer said.

Looting continued even after dawn this morning. Police arrested two teen-age youths as they attempted to steal musical instruments from a shop window smashed by vandals during the night. A Negro woman blew a whistle to summon pass-

Halted Before Making Return Trip

Four Kids Swim 1,000 Ft. Across River

Four Levittown youngsters sent the Bristol Borough Police Department into a tizzy yesterday when they took a trip to New Jersey via the Delaware River.

The youngsters dived off the Municipal Pier and swam more than 1,000 feet over a 40-foot channel across the river to the Jersey side.

They were seen in the water by Charles Katz, an adult, also of Levittown, who notified Bristol police.

Hails Launch

Patrolman Joseph Mangiaracina rushed to the pier to investigate the report and saw the children on the Jersey shore. He hailed two youths in a motor launch and asked them to pick up the youngsters.

Meanwhile, the four — three boys and a girl — were preparing to swim back to the Pennsylvania side of the river.

Their plans were interrupted by the youths in the launch who shouted to them, as they approached, to stay put.

Brought To Headquarters

Brought to police headquarters the children identified themselves as Tommy Meyers, 11, son of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Meyers Sr., 37 Grand Pine Road, Goldenridge; Bobby Krotowski, 11, son of Mr. and Mrs. Krotowski, 270 Golden Ridge Drive, and 10-year-old twins Billy and Judy Kunz, son and daughter of John Kunz, Grapevine Road, Goldenridge.

Police Chief Vincent Faragalli ordered calls to the childrens' parents while he, Patrolmen Joseph Downs, Mangiaracina, John Chichilitti and policewoman Marie Manzo shook their heads in amazement, disbelief and relief.

Suggests Cigarettes

While waiting for their parents the children speculated on what their punishment would be. Judy suggested to her twin brother that perhaps it would be a good idea to "buy Daddy a couple of packs of Newports, and maybe he won't get too mad at us."

When asked how they felt after their experience the children all agreed that they felt fine. Judy, they disclosed, was the last to reach the Jersey shore.

"We were going to swim back," said Tommy Meyers, "but the men in the boat came and got us."

Bobby 'Grounded'

This morning, Bobby, whose father is a patient in Jeanes Hospital, Philadelphia, was "grounded" by his mother for an indefinite period. His father, a diabetic, hasn't heard of the escapade as yet.

The twins, whose father was at work today, are also being punished.

"We have to stay in, oh . . . I forget how long," said Billy. "My bike has been taken away until I am good enough to have it back. My father was surprised, and I don't think we'll do it again."

As for Tommy — "He's fine this morning," reported his mother. "At the moment he's mowing the lawn for us." And it appears that Tommy will be doing quite a bit of work around the house. His mother says that Tommy's Dad has given express orders that he stay close to home for a good while.

Mrs. Meyers said this morning that it wasn't until last night that she began to feel the effects of the childrens' action.

"I almost wept at the thought of what could have happened to them," she said in a strained voice.

Same Story: Hot, Humid

Those who like hot, humid weather will be pleased to know that more of the same is expected for the next few days.

The weatherman reports that no relief is in sight at least through tomorrow.

Thundershowers, expected this afternoon and tomorrow afternoon, are not expected to bring any significant drop in temperatures.

Incidentally, yesterday morning's low temperature of 74 degrees was the highest low since July 18, 1963 when the low was also 74.

Non-Paying Occupation

Tax Break Coming For Housewives

The Bucks County Board of Assessment last night announced plans to eliminate an occupation tax on housewives.

John Hutton, chairman, stated that the $100 assessment on housewives "does not represent the intent of the law permitting taxes on persons with an occupation for which there is a definite income."

Hutton also said the board is considering eliminating an occupation assessment on those who are receiving social security benefits.

The changes go into effect next year. Most districts in the Lower Bucks area do not have an occupation tax but many in Central Bucks do.

The announcement came at a meeting at the courthouse attended by school officials from Centenial, Central Bucks, Council Rock and New Hope-Solebury school districts. The meeting was called by the Bucks County superintendent of schools to explain a new job clarification manual recently adopted for occupational assessments.

Where You Can Register

The Bucks County traveling registrars are sitting tonight until 9 o'clock at the Southampton Fire House on Street Road in Upper Southampton Township.

Tomorrow they will be at the Samuel K. Faust Elementary School in Nottingham Village, Bensalem Township, from 2 to 9 p.m.

Spot Check Of Bridge Travelers Carried Out W ithout Incident

The Delaware River Joint Toll Bridge Commission survey of Tacony-Palmyra bridge patrons was carried on without incident, except for a few grumbles from motorists, on Saturday and Sunday, according to Leo Schaeffer, general manager of the Burlington County spans.

The survey, to determine the origin, destination and frequency of use of the motoring public using the bridge, was planned by the Joint Toll Bridge Commission to be conducted at the toll booths. Permission of the County Bridge Commission was refused. However, the spot check was made about 1,500 feet beyond the property which is under the county commission's jurisdiction.

No Tie-Ups

Bridge commission, Palmyra and State police were on hand to prevent any traffic tie-ups, and kept cars on the move throughout the two days. On Saturday, a near record 67,007 cars crossed the Tacony-Palmyra bridge, and on Sunday approximately 66,000 vehicles used the span.

The survey, which started at 5:30 a.m., was called to a halt at 8:30 p.m. by police as a safety precaution.

The third phase of the Tacony - Palmyra survey will be made today. A similar project will be conducted at the Burlington-Bristol Bridge on Thursday, Saturday and Sunday.

Police Patrols Decreased As Harlem Simmers Down

NEW YORK (UPI) — Policemen in decreased numbers patrolled violence-torn Harlem today and police officials expressed optimism that they had seen the last of the riotous behavior of the past three nights.

Tensions remained high and the appearance of a white man on the streets of the Negro community, even in daylight, drew sullen looks from street corner loungers.

Walk With Placards

Several women were seen walking along the street with placards pinned to their dresses carrying a picture of Police Lt. Thomas Gilligan whose shooting of a Negro teenage youth last Thursday triggered Harlem resentment which led to the riot.

The picture of the police officer was captioned: "Wanted for murder — Lt. Gilligan."

There were fewer policemen on patrol by foot and prowl car than in the past few days. But officials declined to give out figures.

To Eight Hours

Also the 12-hour tours of policemen assigned to Harlem had been shaved to eight hours, further limiting the number on the street at any given moment.

Resentment against whites was still evident. White persons unfamiliar to the neighborhood drew venomous looks from many Negroes and here and there were forced to walk around Negroes standing in the middle of the sidewalks and refusing to step aside.

At 8 a.m. EDT thousands of policemen were congregated outside the West 123rd Street Police Station for the change in tours.

A Negro youth in blue polo shirt and light blue pants swaggered through the crowds of policemen, his face a picture of scorn. The policemen ignored him.

Across the street from the station house stood a group of youngsters clad in bright yellow satin shirts and trousers. It was a championship police athletic league fife and drum corps headed downtown to march in the Shriner's convention parade.

Tullytown Passes Zoning – After Seven Years Of Talk

Tullytown is zoned.

Since 1957, council members have been talking about enacting a code for the borough. Last night, in less than five minutes, the motion was adopted by a vote of six to one. Councilman John Silvi was the only dissenter.

The only hassle on zoning developed when Solicitor Jack Sirott suggested that the borough have copies of the code printed and made available to the public. Silvi objected and accused council of being "extravagant."

Hunt Chairman

Council president Eugene M. Lynch appointed Ed Hunt chairman of a committee on "copies of the zoning ordinance."

Generally, the code makes property west of Main St. in the old section of the borough, light industry and that east of Main St., commercial. The tract owned by Warner Co., which borders the Delaware River, is for heavy industry. The area known as the new section of Tullytown, Levittown proper, is residential.

Following a recommendation by Lynch, council voted to increase the number of members on the Tullytown Sewer Authority from five to seven.

The borough is in the final stages of an agreement with Warner Co. to construct sewers in the old section of the borough.

Lynch said that the five present members have done a "terrific job" but he felt two additional members were needed. They will be appointed at Council's next regular meeting.

Present authority members are Albert Monti, Ed Pollea, Gregory Parto, William DePasquale, who serves as council treasurer, and Mike Terminiya.

Council members were accused by Robert Stutzman, a resident of Kenwood Drive South, of stalling on action coscerning the "No Parking" signs which were placed on both sides of Kenwood Drive.

Signs Remain

Stutzman appeared before council 60 days ago and asked members to remove the signs from one side of the drive. He said last night that "two groups from the borough have looked over the situation" but the signs remain.

Earlier in the meeting, Councilman Hunt had suggested that council make a survey of the borough in regard to parking signs. Hunt, along with Councilmen Ernest Johnson, and Anthony Biancosino, said they "would look into the matter."

Questioned Bill

In other action, council voted to pay a bill for $55 from electrician Joseph P. Morrin, Croydon, for a vent fan which was placed in borough hall last year. Councilman Hunt questioned the payment of the bill and stated that Morrin had never contracted for the item.

Council also decided to investigate the possibility of providing swimming facilities for residents of Tullytown. Lynch appointed Biancosino chairman of a swimming pool committee and Hunt will serve as a committee member.

Following complaints from several residents of Kenwood Drive, the board passed a motion for William Major, borough engineer, to study the traffic conditions at the entrance of the drive to the Levittown Shopping Center. The residens maintain that because of the stop sign placed there they are not able to enter the road, due to heavy traffic.

Council also voted to give its support to pending legislation in the state Senate to provide port facilities for his area.

Middletown Seeks Tax Settlement

The Middletown Township School Board asked its solicitor last night to negotiate for a settlement with Jubilee Lanes of Levittown, which reportedly owes the school board and Middletown Township more than $30,000 in amusement taxes.

The bowling establishment, located at the Country Club Shopping Center, on Route 1, is preparing to file for bankruptcy according to Township Manager Barry R. Evans. There will be little chance of getting the money if that happens, Evans said.

The taxes, going back for five years, are equally divided between the township and the school board, according to an agreement between the two taxing bodies.

Not Settled

The township took the Jubilee Lanes to court more than a year ago, but the case is not yet settled. Evans said it is difficult to determine just how much money is due in taxes.

School Board president Bert Herman urged the Solicitor Sidney T. Yates to "do everything possible." We've been lenient and it's time to do something about it."

The board also went on record disapproving of administrative policy which permits students at Carl Sandburg Junior High School to conduct bowling classes at Jubilee Lanes.

It was reported that the board has received about $27,000 from the Langhorne Speedway for amusement taxes since 1959.

A story unfolded early this morning in the Indian Creek section of Levittown, which ended with nobody laughing.

It all started at 25 minutes past midnight when residents near the Indian Creek Pool heard strange noises coming from within the pool gates.

Bristol Township police were notified and Officers Donald Peterson and Lamar Slemmer responded.

* * *

Piercing the dark of night with their flashlights, the officers spotted two geese — or were they ducks — floating gracefully — and noisily in the cool, pool waters.

Suddenly one of the birds leaped out of the pool. Officer Peterson grabbed it.

Meanwhile, the other swam gloatingly around the pool — out of reach of the long arm of the law. Peterson, who had the other one in his clutches, decided to let go since it was obvious the bird wasn't going to climb up the fence out of the pool site — and Peterson wasn't going to be able to pull him through the fence.

* * *

The officers decided to have a confab and came up with what they considered the best possible solution at the time — to withdraw strategically and notify the animal control officer in the morning.

Meanwhile, pool guard Marylin Powers of 63 Ice Pond Road, opposite the pool, and her husband Bernard, kept tossing in their beds unable to sleep because of the din and chatter of the non-member swimmers.

Reluctant to awaken pool manager Mary Burke of 55 Ice Pond Road at 5 a.m., Bernie Powers decided to climb the pool fence and do something about it.

And that he did.

* * *

Bernie got over the fence, all right. But when he landed inside, it was right smack between the wooden slats of a bench, with both feet wedged in the bench and unable to move.

The Levittown - Fairless Hills Rescue Squad had to dislodge him after Mary Burke came a-running with the keys.

Bernie was taken to Lower Bucks County Hospital where he was examined and released He's to get an X-ray today, just as a precautionary measure.

* * *

Meanwhile, back at the pool, the visiting ducks continued their pleasure.

Pool attendants got them out this morning at 9 a.m.

The life guards didn't think the entire thing was funny. They had to cancel morning swimming classes.

It was the second time some self-appointed pranksters had ruined swimming for some children. Previously the animals had been put in the Country Club swimming pool.

Not 'Extremism'

Miller Says Barry Meant 'Patriotism'

BUFFALO, N.Y. (UPI) — Republican vice presidential nominee William E. Miller said Monday night that Sen. Barry Goldwater meant to convey the idea that "patriotism in defense of liberty is no vice" when he made his controversial "extremism" speech accepting the GOP presidentia nomination.

Miller made the remark in answer to a reporter's question at a news conference at Buffalo's International Airport a short time after he returned to his home state from the San Francisco convention.

The New York congressman said Goldwater meant to convey the idea in his statement that "patriotism in defense of liberty is no vice." Goldwater's statement was "extremism in defense of liberty is no vice. . . moderation in the pursuit of justice is no virtue."

Miller's statement appeared to be an attempt to stem some of the criticism against Goldwater — from Republicans and Democrats alike — for his defense of extremism.

On other matters, Miller pledged to strive for party unity and not to inject the civil rights issue into the campaign. But he did not rule out support for the Goldwater-Miller ticket from Gov. George Wallace of Alabama.

"We will welcome support from anyone who believes in our principles," Miller said. "We are not going to exclude or read anyone out of the party." He indicated, however, that Wallace probably would not uphold GOP principles and the party platform.

May Quit Olympics

Reds Sack Smuggling Water Polo Players

MOSCOW (UPI) — Soviet officials have disbanded the nation's Olympic - bound water polo team for smuggling foreign goods into the country, it was disclosed today.

Ten of the 11 members of the team were involved, the newspaper Komsomolskaya Pravda said. It indicated the Soviets may drop out of the water polo event at the Tokyo Olympics because of the incident, one of the biggest scandals in Communist sports history.

It also accused the tea of brawling in a Moscow restraunt, fighting in the water, heavy drinking — and losing games.

The newspaper said the team was returning from a disastrous road trip aboard when its membes were asked to open their suitcases at a customs checkpoint.

"Their suitcases were full of foreign goods . . . who needs so many clothes?" it said. "The water polo players tried to explain they bought them for their poor relatives. That's a lie!

"They were bought, not for presents, but for speculation. There was only one sportsman who did not exchange his dignity for the foreign rags," the newspaper added .

Speculation is a serious crime in the Soviet Union. The newspaper made no mention of whether legal action was planned.

Double Alarm System, Another Wall May Help

Prison Warden Wants 'Guests' To Stay

Bucks County Prison Warden John D. Case made it clear yesterday that he is taking steps to halt the exodus from the jail.

Case said that "physical improvements" were being made including a double alarm system and improvements in the high voltage system.

Guard Suspended

At a prison board meeting in Doylestown, the warden said that a guard who had neglected to count heads following an exercise session in the prison yard had been suspended five days without pay. The guard's mental lapse resulted in two inmates scaling the wall and making their way to freedom. They are still at large. Three others were captured before they could get over the wall.

Oddly enough the two made their escape at a time when the security measures were being taken. A new wall between the yard and the warden's home is under construction. This will prevent would-be escapees from making their way to the front gate through the warden's quarters.

The inmates used boards, used in construction, as a plank to scale the wall.

Case, an ex-Marine major, said that exercise periods would be suspended until the wall is completed.

Case said that the rehabilitation center should be open by Aug. 1 and this fact, along with the completion of the operations center at the prison, should solve a lot of security problems.

The operations center when completed will give one guard complete electronic control of two doors leading into the prison. He will also be able to monitor the entrances through closed circuit television.

This will free additional guards to work at the new minimum security prison outside Doylestown. Some 35 to 40 inmates, first offenders and those with alcoholic problems will be moved there after the operations center is completed.

Case said that two factors contributed towards overburdening the security system last week.

The first was the work going on in the yard, with "strangers" (workers) coming in and out of the institution and doors being left open.

The second is the dozen or more inmates on the "Outmate" program. They leave for work at different times, all wearing "civvies."

'Just Might Skip,' Carlin Says

D.A. 'Very Reluctant' To Free Chronic Offenders Without Bail

District Attorney William J. Carlin yesterday said that he would be "very reluctant" to release without bail second and third offenders, who have been picked up as suspects in new crimes.

Carlin said that a plan proposed by the William Penn Center should be subjected to close scrutiny both in regards to the type of inmate under consideration and the type of crime he is charged with.

The rest of the members of the county prison board agreed with Carlin at a meeting in Doylestown.

"Just Might Skip"

"Chronic offenders aren't the type to give up voluntarily when they are wanted for a crime," Carlin said. "If they are released without bail after their arrest, they just might skip."

Carlin said that he would have no objection to the plan being applied to first offenders charges with minor crimes such as minor cases of assault and battery and motor vehicles infractions.

He said that the area where an offender lives is an important factor. "Persons from New Jersey who are charged with drunken driving in Lower Bucks might pose a problem if they are freed without bail," the district attorney said.

Own Recognizance

The prison advisory committee at the William Penn Center is studying a plan where minor suspects could be released on their own recognizance. If the court recommends bail and the person is indigent, citizens could pledge their homes or donate money to a bail fund in order to get the accused released.

Such persons would not be released until their record and background is investigated by an advisory committee.

The subject was brought up by Commissioner Walter S. Farley Jr., a member of the prison board. Farley said he favored the plan.

Farley also asked why prisoners who are awaiting trial aren't eligible for the prison's work release program called "Outmate."

"It seems to me that persons not convicted have less privileges than those who are," Farley said.

A state law passed last year provides that defendants sentenced to a year or less, at the court's discretion, can be permitted to work at their normal jobs and then return to jail.

Carlin, Farley, and Major John D. Case, prison warden, all said the law should be broadened. Carlin said the matter could be taken up with Bucks' legislators in an effort to see if the law can't be amended.

Also included under the plan, Case said, should be cases taken before justices of the peace. The law presently excludes defendants sentenced by magistrates, Case said.

Six Marbles Disappear– Hard Way

Two-year-old Joseph White of 356 Main St., Tullytown, may be a little young for playing magician but he managed to make six marbles disappear yesterday afternoon.

The only trouble is — the marbles disappeared right down his throat. He swallowed them.

Joseph's mother grabbed him by the feet, turned him upside down and counted the marbles as they popped out again.

Rescue Squad

Just to be on the safe side, she called the Levittown-Fairless Hills Rescue Squad which took him to Lower Bucks County Hospital where he was examined and released.

The incident was one of five which kept the squad busy yesterday afternoon.

At 12:30 p.m., Mrs. Ann May Kegane, 70, of 60 Vivid Lane, Vermilion Hill, Levittown, fell on the floor in her dining room and hurt her left hip. Mrs. Kegane, the mother of squad nurse Florence Palmer, was taken to Lower Bucks County Hospital by the squad where examination proved negative.

Andrew McQuade, 13, of 15 Robin Hill Lane, Red Cedar Hill, Levittown, was treated and released after he suffered a possible fracture of the little finger on his left hand while diving into a pool yesterday. Andrew's finger struck the back of another swimmer. He was admitted to Lower Bucks County Hospital.

Anthony Baigis, 11, of 11 Hickory Lane, Holly Hill, Levittown suffered lacerations of the left knee and a possible fracture of the knee while playing ball at the Thomas Jefferson Elementary School, Levittown last night.

Anthony, a Little Leaguer, fell while running toward base about 8 p.m. yesterday. He was treated and released.

Four - month - old Henry Cobb of 640 Lincoln Highway, Fairless Hills, is in satisfactory condition at Lower Bucks County Hospital after he fell over in an automatic swing shortly after 7 p.m. yesterday. He was admitted to Lower Bucks County Hospital where he was brought by the Levittown-Fairless Hills Rescue Squad.

OAS Plans Action To Isolate Cuba...

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Foreign ministers of the 20-member Organization of American States (OAS) meet today to consider sanctions designed to tighten the hemispheric isolation of Communist Cuba.

High U.S. officials predicted that the economic and diplomatic restrictions would be approved, despite the last-minute political reservations of some Latin American nations.

Officials said the main concern was passing the three resolutions by the greatest possible majority. They said a side margin of approval was necessary to demonstrate a united hemispheric front against Fidel Castro's regime.

Since Venezuela requested the sanctions as punishment for Cuban aggression and thus is ineligible to vote, 13 favorable ballots would provide the necessary two-thirds majority. The sanctions would be invoked under terms of the Inter-American Mutual Defense Pact.

The three resolutions before the OAS call for:

—A condemnation of the Castro regime for aggression against Venezuela; a mandatory, collective trade and shipping embargo of the island; and recommendations that all OAS members break diplomatic and airline connections with Cuba.

—An interpretation of subversion as a form of armed aggression under terms of the Rio treaty.

—A collective recommendation that all other free world nations co-operate in the trade and shipping embargo.

Urges State Platform

Javits Won't Back National GOP Slate

NEW YORK (UPI) — Sen. Jacob K. Javits R-N.Y. announced today that he would "withhold my support from the national Republican ticket" and would urge leading New York Republicans to unite with him in proclaiming a New York state Republican platform.

Javits, who said he fully recovered from "psychosomatic bursitis" contracted at the GOP convention in San Francisco, said he had waited since the convention for Sen. Barry Goldwater to clarify his acceptance speech.

"Sen. Goldwater has made no effort to clarify the apprehensions regarding his own philosophy and his campaign strategy," Javits said. "Though he speaks often about party unity, he has made no effort to date to unify the party or to conciliate moderate Republicans.

"There also has been ominous indications that structured into my party's campaign strategy may be an effort to exploit the 'white backlash' in the North, and to appeal to the dying, old social order of segregation in the South — two prospects which are alien to the principles which I have fought all my life."

"However," Javits said, "I am and will remain a Republican and will not bolt the party. I will not support President Johnson."

Then came a telephone call from the Kline Pontiac Agency near Doylestown. The car had been serviced and was ready for delivery.

Garbage Goes Up In Smoke

If residents of Roundwood Lane in the Red Cedar Hill section of Levittown thought they were seeing the biggest barbeque of all time right in the middle of their street this morning — they were right.

Only whatever was cooking wasn't very tempting to either the appetite or the nostrils.

The smouldering mass — or mess — was comprised of leftovers being carted away as garbage in a Penn Sanitation Co. garbage truck.

Somehow the garbage caught fire, and the men working on the truck decided to dump it on the street and put it out themselves — rather than carry a hot load to the dumps.

The incident occurred around 9 a.m. Once the fire was out they shoveled the remains back in the truck.

For Curbs And Driveways

Lower Makefield Unit OKs New Fees

A resolution revising the laws covering private construction of curbs and driveways was approved last night by the Lower Makefield Board of Supervisors.

Previously, the township required a $1 per foot and $5 inspection fee, and under the new law, there will be one flat fee of $15 each for permits to build new or repair old driveways.

Chairman Peter F. Campbell made the motion to adopt the resolution, and it was carried unanimously with Supervisors Bill Mackensen and Russell Carter approving it.

Other Matters

In other matters, the board approved a three-month extension for the Oakdale Development Co. for the completion of construction work on streets and drainage facilities in Oakdale Manor Section 1.

The firm had requested a six-month extension, but the supervisors said this would carry the work into January when the weather is unfit for street work. They granted the firm a three-month extension from July 3 to Oct. 3 instead.

The firm had already begun the work, Campbell noted, but was unable to complete it due to insufficient funds available. The firm said it now had funds to complete it. The development is on Big Oak Road.

OK Proclamation

The supervisors also adopted a proclamation making Sept. 28 - Oct. 4 Public Works Week in conjunction with the national observance. The week is to pay respect to all public works officials and workers.

The supervisors also approved vouchers from the township manager and for the month of June, and the minutes of the July 6 meeting, after a brief discussion.

Miss Mary Banko of Big Oak Road objected to the brief phrase saying she had complained about the Penn Tree Co. at the last meeting. She asked that her entire complaint be used in the minutes. The supervisors refused, saying it was on tape if anyone wanted to hear it.

Greek Cypriots Get Weapons

NICOSIA, Cyprus (UPI) — New fears of possible major violence swept Cyprus today because of the clandestine build-up of heavy military equipment on the strife-torn island.

Greek Cypriot partisans received 36 truckloads of new equipment under cover of predawn darkness yesterday from three mysterious ships lying at anchor off the southern port of Limassol.

The ships, reported flying Norwegian flags, were not registered with the usual shipping agencies. They unloaded their cargo to smaller vessles which landed them at Limassol where packing cases and crates were transferred to trucks and carted to unknown destinations inland in armed convoys.

United Nations officials were prevented from following. But Turkish Cypriot dockworkers were cleared from the landing area prior to the unloading operation, and U.N. officials said they believed the crates contained arms destined for Greek Cypriot supply depots.

One of the crates was big enough to contain artillery, observers said. A U.N. official said a crane at dockside was "heavy enough for unloading tanks."

The Greek and Cypriot communities on Cyprus have been feuding for years. Violence erupted last Christmas, and Monday's clandestine supply landing had been preceded by reports of Turkish Cypriot arms buildups.

Yardley Oks $19,441 St. Paving Contract

A street repair contract for $19,441 was awarded to a lone bidder last night by Yardley Borough Council.

The contract went to George Miller and Sons Co. Inc. of Warminister. The firm will install permanent roadways on Bell Ave. and Ferry St. and will blacktop Brown and Maple Aves.

H. R. Hershberger, vice president of the Yardley Citizens Association, questioned why only one bid was made on the job. He also reminded the council that three months ago it was stated that no further work should be done on streets, until after the new sewer lines are installed because it would necessitate the digging up of any new street work laid down.

Engineer Answers

Borough Engineer Joseph Parks replied that only two firms in the county make use of state-approved materials for this type work and thtat the borough would lose $4,000 in matching funds from the state if temporary paving work was done.

In support of the contract awarding, Councilman Ted Ziaylek, who heads the streets committee, said for technical reasons, that if the temporary work were done, then the sewer plans would have to be extensively and at great expense revised.

Another contract was awarded for putting in a concrete apron in front of the Yardley-Makefield firehouse on Main St. It went to Bohnler Bros. of Newtown for $3,050.

In other matters, the council approved the new, more stringent health ordinance upon final reading and John B. Cole, council president, announced that the hearing on the controversial 200-unit new apartment and service station sought for N. Main St. at Dolington Road will not be held until after council's Aug. 17 meeting, if ever. He said the hearing had to be readvertised.

Citizens in the area have opposed the commercialization project on N. Main St. because it is zoned residential.
